Rosebud Run Sleddog Classic

The race

Didsbury Review

After three postponements, the Rosebud Run Sleddog Classic will take place this weekend on Mar. 11 and 12.

The town is now busy preparing for what is being coined Didsbury's event of the year.

Trail master John Bates worked to prepare the trail in anticipation of the snow. Bates cleared bush, planned, groomed and designed the trail, and now Windsor has taken on the trail mainte-

"John did an awesome job," said Dena Wannamaker who is on the Classic organ-izing committee. "I think the trickiest part for him was planning how the trail should go under the bridge and out the other

In a trail update, Windsor said that with three to four inches of new snow over the past 24 hours, grooming on March 1 took longer than expected.

The trail is in excellent condition," he

Test teams went out this past weekend and directional snow fence as installed.

With the three post-ponments, some of the expected mushers are now unable to attend including the team that was going to come from Yellowknife.

These are the types of things you run into," said Wannamaker. "It is hard to postpone, contact all the mushers, and then get everyone registered for the new date. There is a team from Montana coming. So we lost some and gained some."

With this being a new venture, Wannamaker says it is hard to gauge how many spectators will come. But for those who do attend, there are some rules to fol-

No foot travel is allowed on the race trail at any time. Signs and snow fence have been posted to limit foot travel around the race trail.

The committee asks that you please pay particular attention to the signs and snow fence. They are there for your safety, the safety of the sled dogs, the mushers and their equipment, say organizers.

No public parking will be allowed at the starting gate

Parking at the starting gate is reserved solely for the use of mushers, administrative and emergency personnel. Security will prevent public vehicular access to this

Lastly, it may be very cold at the time of this event so the committee requests you dress appropriately.

Wannamaker also asked that no one pets the sled dogs without first getting permission.

"We just want everyone to be respectful of the dogs and their teams," said Wannamaker. "There are lots and lots of places to watch from, including the start and finish lines, along the fence, and along the creek is a really good vantage point

There will be a concession on site run by the Didsbury Karate Club.

The race will start March 11 at 10 a.m. and go until approximately 3 p.m.
At 5 p.m. the Mushers Mess will start up at the Zion Missionary Evangelical Tickets for the Mess will only be sold at the race start at 10 a.m. The cost is $5 per ticket, and chilli, smokies, salad and dessert will be served.

On Sunday the race will start up at 9 a.m. Trophy presentations will take place at approximately 3 p.m.

"The whole community has been very supportive of this, with their sponsorship and door prizes," said Wannamaker. "We are just glad that it is finally happening, it will be a great time for everyone

A collection of Olds College students, instructors and staff has returned from an eight day relief expedition to storm ravaged Louisiana, where they helped repair two homes heavily damaged during last summer's Hurricane

Members of the college's Relief and Development Committee, including eight students, travelled to Lacombe, Louisiana, near New Orleans, on Feb. 21. They arrived back in Calgary Tuesday,

The week-long trip was funded through a variety of ources, including the Olds College Students' Association, A.U.P.E., and the faculty association.

"It was unbelievable, a great experience," said Graeme

Hill, a second year arboriculture program student and trip co-leader. "It's nice to help out other people. The home we worked on had just been gutted. There's more work there than a 100 companies could handle."

Hill and McDonald both called the relief expedition well worthwhile

The trip cost about $10,000, said college spokesperson Sandy Bexon.

In preparation for the trip, team members practiced basic wiring, plumbing, and construction techniques at the college's carpentry lab. Those skills were used throughout the repair work.

What is a bully?

SUBMITTED BY KATIE LUTZ

Is it the older kid in high school with the black shirt, black pants, black hair - black everything? Is it the sweet and innocent girl, with pink ribbons in her hair, that is always nice to everyone whenever a parent or teacher is around?

What about the jock, Mr. Captain of the hockey team, blonde hair, blue eyes, every girl wants a ride in his truck kinda guy?

A bully could be anyone. Bullies are not only found in schools but are also established in the workplace, on the road flashing their lights at you to get out of their way, or at the grocery store cut-ting you off to get to the teller first, even at home ting you off to get to the teller first, even at home using intimidation to get a wife to do things "the proper way", or better known as his way.

In school bullying has gotten a lot of attention in the last few years and rightfully so. I was glad that the few people who taunted me during my school years never once called me at home. At least every day at 3:15 I could escape to the safety of my home. Cell phones and the Internet have changed everything. They have even changed bulles. No longer can you escape the torturer when lies. No longer can you escape the torturer when you get home; it can now follow you 24/7. They call and leave harassing text messages or send you scary e-mails and utter threats over MSN. This has become a real issue in our schools in the last few months.

But what about the other forms of bullying? Do we realize that being bullied can be anything from physical violence and attacks, threats and intimidation, extortion, or the stealing of money and possessions? It comes in many forms that are not always the traditional verbal taunts, name calling, put-downs and exclusion from groups that we

A Step Back

Maybe I should take a step back and introduce myself. I am Katie Lutz. I am the Crime Prevention Coordinator for Didsbury, Carstairs and Cremona. I take a look at crime prevention through a different lens. I look at the root causes of crime and educate people and set up programs to help eliminate the crime before it begins. The program's focus is prevention not reaction. For the next few months I will be submitting a bi-weekly article that will discuss issues that are going on in our community. I hope to shed a little light on situations that people are not talking about. Watch for future articles and projects that the Partners in Crime Prevention program is addressing. Together our communities can be different and by different, I mean better.

Crystal Meth, the sad truth

This month Didsburians will have the opportunity to see a play about the very scary and real drug, Crystal Meth.

Awareness of this drug is so important, because if someone tries it even once, there is a large possibility they will become addicted. Awareness is become addicted. Awareness is what may stop them from ever getting to that point.

Everything you need to make Crystal Meth, can be purchased over the counter at many convienent stores, and for as little as $5 a person can remain high on it for two days.

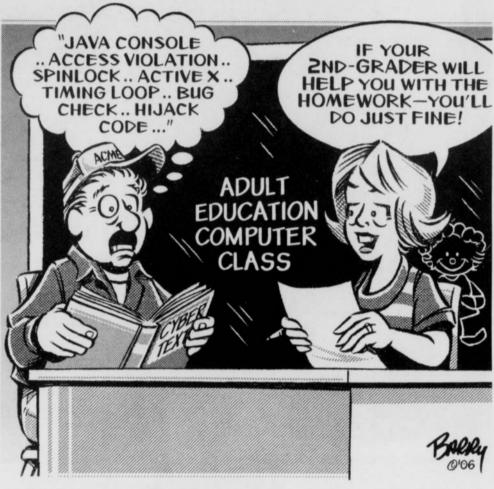

I have a friend who very quickly became very addicted to the drug, and within weeks they were a different person.

I remember looking at them, and seeing their bones sticking out. It was the most disturbing thing I have ever seen.

They got sores over their body, and became very withdrawn from their friends and family, except for those "friends" who would get high with them.

It was a long, hard battle to get this person back to the way they were, drug free. A battle I would never want to go through myself, or watch someone I love go through it again.

I have been working on an article about Crystal Meth and the upcoming play, that will run in next week's paper. Watch for it, because the information in it could save your life, or the life of someone you love.

CWB false statements

The Editor,

On Feb 4/06, The Edmonton Journal carried an article titled 'Sowing Seeds of Change' in which opponents of the Canadian Wheat Board (CWB) once again make many false statements. "The change" (open market) "will lead to better prices and returns, access more markets, and a wider window to take advantage of any surge in prices".

This is completely false. The CWB markets farmer's grain to over 70 customers and it blends grades when advantageous to producers. Independent studies have shown that CWB has returned premiums of $72 million annually to Barley producers (Schmitz, Gray, Schmitz and Storey, The CWB and Barley Marketing: Price Pooling and Single-Desk Selling, 1997). And, Wheat premiums of $265 million annually to wheat producers (Kraft, Furtan, and Tyrchniewicz, Performance Evaluation of the Canadian Wheat Board, 1996).

"The Tories campaigned on marketing choice and we expect them to follow through on that commitment" said Blair Rutter, Executive director of Western Canadian Wheat Growers (WCWG). He further states "It's a change that's long overdue. Nobody's getting rich under the current system, and there's nothing to lose trying something different". Guess again Mr. Rutter, farmers have much more to lose. If the CWB loses its single desk selling monopoly, farmers will lose their market power to get the best possible prices for their product. They will lose the market development of the CWB (CWB continually shows purchase of our grains how to best utilize them). We will lose the transparencies of our marketer, we will lose a strong opponent of GM wheat, we will lose blending premi-ums, we will lose the Canadian Grain Commission that offers undisputed grad-ing to producers, and we will lose the fair allocation of Producer Cars. If farmers give up the CWB's mandate over wheat or barley marketing, we can't get it back. Chapter 11 of the North American Free Trade Agreement says that if we turn over control of (and profits from) wheat or barley marketing to grain companies, we can't reverse that decision without paying those companies billions in compen for lost profits-present and future. Despite what Stephen Harper's Conservatives (David Anderson included) and their lapdogs the WCWG say, farmers have one hell of a lot to lose

So the contender for the top court, Judge Marshall Rothstein, wants law-mak ing left to MPs, as that judges should apply the law, rather than make it. (EJ, Feb.28). This has left some wondering about the same-sex mar-riage law. The new onservative Justice Minister Vic Toewes has pointed out that at pres ent the interpretation of the law has sometimes led to house arrests for those committing serious crimes and that such would no longer be an option. He says that there has been the opinion that for most crimes in Canada, sentencing is up to judges. (ibid). Justice Minister loews makes it clear he believes in mandatory minimum sentences, say ing certainly they're a deterrent.

'Criminals tend not to be forward - thinking enough to be deterred by harsher sentences,' says Willie de Wit, a Calgary criminal lawyer and past president of AB's criminal justice branch of the Canadian Bar Association.(ibid) However, Don Schiemann, father of one of the RCMP slain in Mayerthorpe, says the present minimum for gun crimes is a joke and we need to send a strong, strong message to the criminals. This option eems to be supported by the latest Stats Canada report of Dec. 15/05, 'The incarceration rate for Canada for last year is at the lowest ebb it has ever been.' The report indicated that our crime rate for the same year is very near the highest it has ever been since records were kept in 1962.

It is noteworthy that the Rothstein interview came during the week of the first anniversary of the gunning down of our 4

RCMP. There are those who speak out in defence of the present gun law, pointing out that the gun used in the shooting by Roszko was a long gun used by farmers and hunters and not the handguns commonly used by criminals. However, they fail to indicate whether the gun used by Roszko was registered. 'Criminals don't register guns', and the billions wasted on the present gun registry would be far better spent toward putting more policemen on the beat. Justice Minister Vic

Justice Minister Vic Toewes reiterates that serious gun and drugdealing offences require incarceration. Some argue building more jails would be very costly. The Correctional Services of Canada says housing a prisoner costs on average $85,000 per year. (ibid).

The new Didsbury Golf Club board of directors is working towards making the course "the best little nine hole golf course in central Alberta."

The board is busy preparing for the upcoming season by sharing their ideas and concepts and working towards keeping the golf club affordable for everyone to enjoy by remaining very financially stable.

"Our new board of directors comes from all walks of life, so everyone has different ideas," said club treasurer Dennis MacKenzie. "We have three ladies on the board so that aspect is nice to have."

Some of the major projects that will be happening at the course over 2006 include adding black dirt to the

This project is already in progress and it is expected to be complete by the end of May and playable by August once the grass has grown in.

The completion of the canal project will also happen

The canal will allow the club to have more water storge for irrigation purposes. It was started in 2004 but parts of the project were delayed last year due to the weather.

"It was more challenging than we expected but it will be finished this season," said club president Jim Tanish. Dallas Johnson is the new head professional of the club and with him he brings 17 years of experience.

Johnson is from Didsbury and worked at the club in the past before moving away will remember me," said Johnson. "This is an exciting challenge for me. I want to see my home course grow and prosper.

Johnson is also excited to move closer to his family and to help use his education and experience to bring the course up to where it should be.

The first rate increase in three years will be instituted this season due to the rising cost of supplies. Memberships will go up approximately 10 per cent.
"This will still make Didsbury the most affordable golf course anywhere in central Alberta," said Tanish The board leased a triplex greens mower and pur-chased an upgraded beverage cart.

"The new mower will give the grounds staff more time to maintain the course," said Tanish. "It will help us present a nice looking course." Dale Ekman will return as the grounds superintendent and the other grounds and kitchen staff are all looking forward to coming back for another season.

Johnson and the kitchen staff are putting together a healthier food menu for the club in an effort to get more of the community to come out for lunch. Everyone is welcome to eat at the club, not only members. The club is also going smoke-free

The pro shop will be stocked up with the latest style of clothing and merchandise, both soft and hard goods. "We are revitalizing the pro shop," said Johnson. " "We are revitalizing the pro shop," said Johnson. "The staff is going to be very knowledgeable on the products. Our goal is to help people improve their game with the

The club will also start offering club repairs to both members and non-members

The basement of the clubhouse is also going to be revamped to include new lockers and a downstairs washroom/ change room.

Two new handicap parking stalls will also be added to

The board wants to support the local community as much as possible so they will be purchasing as much of their supplies locally, as possible.

They will have a booth in the Didsbury Trade Show on April 1 and 2 and they encourage people to stop over with any questions they may have. They will have prod-

A new policies and procedures safety manual is in the works along with a long-term capital plan.

Johnson will be looking at changing the formats of the tournaments and re-revitalizing the league

The club is community owned and operated and it is registered as a non-profit society.

"This course was built by volunteers through the years," said MacKenzie. "The people from the past have done an excellent job and we are just trying to make the course even better.

DENISE STEVENS

BY TAMARA COLLINS Didsbury Review

The Didsbury Aqua-Jets summer swim club is an "incredible opportunity for kids to build self-esteem and just have plain good fun", according to president Denise

"A lot of people are under the impres sion it is only for advanced competitive swimmers," said Stevens.

In reality, she said it is a well-rounded club. It meets the needs of the competi-tive swimmer as well as the developmental swimmer who may not necessarily be interested in competing but just loves to swim and improve

"Unlike most organized sports, coaches are employed and have to meet strict coach-ing qualifications,"

Coaches are there to bring out the best in every swimmer with their expertise and give them opportunities to set goals for themselves, she said.

Former Aqua-Jet Jillian Tyler trained with the club for six years and has since moved on to a higher level of training. Stevens said she is preparing for the Olympics and is doing "extremely well."

"We have confidence we'll see her on the podium one day," said the club president. "This is the starting point for anyone in realizing their true potential in swim-

The Aqua-Jets offer two levels of entry: regular club which swims five days a week, Mon. to Fri. from 5:30 p.m. to 7 p.m., and development swim, which wims three days a week, Mon., Wed., and Fri. from 5:30 p.m. to 6:15 p.m. Ages five to 11 are all welcome to join.

"You may not always make it to prac-tices or all meets. That is your choice," said Stevens. "For a competitive edge however, swimming four to five days a week is optimum."

The season starts May 1, and goes until Aug. 13. Swim meets are most Saturdays, beginning June 10.

Meets are held in High River, Okotoks, Canmore, Hanna, Calgary and Innisfail. Provincials alternate every two years between Edmonton and Calgary

The Aqua-Jets fees are reasonable and each family is committed to working only one bingo season, according work out next casino until next year," said Stevens. "Financial help is also available through KidSport if someone is in need, to allow every child the joy of sports.

Forms for KidSport will be available on the Aqua-Jets registration night, April 5 at 7 p.m. in the pool classroom Didsbury Aquatic Centre.

The annual general meeting will happen at the same time.

The Aqua-Jets is governed by a parentrun board and receives its mandate from Alberta Summer Swim Association.

"The Aqua-Jets Club truly is a little aqua" gem offered right here in our own little town," said Stevens. "If your child loves to swim, they will love Summer Swim Club."

PONDERINGS OF THE HEART

Sharing

SUBMITTED BY MARGARET FRADLEY

Years ago, as a young child growing up in the depression years, I recall, men would come to our door asking for a handout. My father, who was a very generous man, and yet having so little, would often give these men 25 cents which in those days was a lot; then suddenly it became apparent that every night there would be a knock at the door with someone asking for help. My brother who was five years my senior, noticed that on our gate there was a large "X", indicating to us that when one man received help, he put a marker up for others to see, that they too might find assistance. Just recently I read that Evangelism is one beggar telling another beggar where to find bread - reading this triggered off the memory of long ago.

This little illustration tells me that when we have found something worthwhile in our lives, we are to share it with others and let them know where we found it or how we obtained it. Often it is difficult to share our faith with others, but we can share it best by the way we live, in the way we love, in who we are. It ends up being what has been said "I would rather see a sermon than hear one any day". How blessed it is to receive with the opportunity to give.

AT THE KITCHEN TABLE

Gopher or squirrel?

SUBMITTED BY NOREEN OLSON

We drove home from Calgary today, March 5, and at the edge of a huge snow covered field near Madden, sat a lone gopher. He must have emerged only moments before we got there because in the vast expanse of untouched snow there was only a small dark hole, a little circlet of tracks, and one small brown mammal, standing at attention and staring off across the limitless white space toward the terribly distant horizon. It would have made a marvellous illustration for a Connie Kaldor album cover or a book about loneliness, solitude and desperation. It was touching and stark and funny. I wish I'd had a camera.

We will probably always call them gophers, although we know they are really Richardson's Ground Squirrels. Meanwhile we really do have some true gophers in Alberta, the northern pocket gopher is a small, dark coloured, bucktoothed rodent with huge, fur-lined pockets on its cheeks. This real gopher, is a tremendous digger who lives almost exclusively underground. We call it a mole. Go figure. When I was a kid our pups dug one up, I rescued it and tried to push it back down its hole. In gratitude it curled up and bit me on the ball of my thumb.

Richardson's Ground Squirrels, (gophers) are everywhere on the plains of Canada and the USA, and especially where there is grain growing. He or she is usually greyish brown, about 10 inches long with a light coloured, pencil like tail. Once in a while there are pure black ones and for the last couple of years we have seen some white ones. The Gopher Museum at Torrington has them in an amazing variety of shades!

Gophers burrow deep into the ground but spend

Gophers burrow deep into the ground but spend most of their waking time running on the surface eating grain in all it's stages of development.

He also has a dangerous and stupid habit of sitting at the edge of his hole chirping and jerking his tail. This makes him a good target and gophers are a favourite food of hawks, badgers, weasels, coyotes, rattlesnakes and other predators.

Farmers have been poisoning gophers as long as they have been planting grain, kids have drowned them out and shot them but still they survive.

them out and shot them but still they survive.

There are several reasons for this, first he establishes his homestead right in the middle of an unlimited supply of food and second with a gestation period of less than a month and up to twelve babies to a batch there seems to be enough gophers to satisfy plenty of predators and still have some left over.

A gopher's burrow is a masterpiece of engineering. There are several rooms including a hibernating chamber and a nursery and these are constructed so that heavy rains will not flood them. There are real entrances, blocked entrances, concealed entrances and blind alleys.

During very wet years the gopher population will diminish but with the last several dry years in our area, gophers have really flourished. This is good news for the coyote and badger families but a cause of great frustration for farmers.

I don't suppose a gopher really thinks much, but I wish I knew what was going through the mind of the early riser at Madden. He looked so terribly lonely and forlorn there, all by himself and nothing but snow for as far as he could see. "Merciful heavens" he might think, "I must have set the alarm clock wrong." Or maybe, "Oh, dear, Oh dear, Oh dear, Oh dear, there must have been a nuclear holocaust and I am the only surviving member of my entire race, whatever shall I do?" Or maybe he was quite pleased with himself as in, " Hey, I'm the first one up, I have the entire Universe to myself, and isn't it beautiful out here."

I tried to share these thoughts with my farmer husband but he was not at all sympathetic. "I hope a coyote gets him," he said.

Saddle up cowgirls it's rodeo queen time

BY SHAWNE MOHL

With the recent frigid temperatures and piles of snow Mother Nature has left us with, it's hard to think about the summer. However, with the summer brings the annual Beef 'n' Barley Days celebrations in the Town of Carstairs – with one aspect of the events being the rodeo queen competition.

Organizers of the annual queen and princess competition are excited and gearing up for their 10th annual contest, which will give two lucky young females between the ages of 14 and 17 the chance to represent the rodeo and the Town for the next year.

According to Jan Carver, chairperson of the committee, the criteria for the upcoming contest is: to be a female between the ages of 14-17, have access to a horse and trailer for the next year, and be committed to the job.

Part of the process to determine who is going to be the next Queen and Princess, will mean the competi-tors are going to have to write an exam on horsemantors are going to have to write an exam on horseman-ship, rodeo, the history of Carstairs and area. They will also take part in public speaking competitions, riding exams, attend two parades, among other things. Despite this being the Town of Carstairs' rodeo the contestants can be from anywhere within the local region – from Water Valley to Cremona to Didsbury to the east Mountain View County border.

Carver says that she would encourage young cowgirls to step up because the experience is a once-in-alifetime opportunity

"It's a very rewarding experience," she said.
"This will help improve self-image and their self-esteem as well," added Lynda Jochems, co-chair of the "We invite everyone - even if they are shy it doesn't mean they aren't going to make a good

"This will help improve self-image and their self-esteem as well. We invite everyone - even if they are shy it doesn't mean they aren't going to make a good queen or princess.'

queen or princess."

The one thing which the committee stresses is that this contest has nothing to do with looks. It is all about being a good, overall citizen and role model to represent the rodeo and Town over the next year. "This is not a beauty contest at all," Jochems added. Both Carver and Jochems stressed that the competition is not a walk in the park.

"It's a huge responsibility," the two committee members said. "They are basically the only ones who really promote the rodeo and the Town at other rodeos

With this year being the 10th year in which both the rodeo and contest have been held, there are some plans to make the prizes for the winners bigger and better than in previous years.

One thing which the committee is hoping to do is bring back all the former queens and princesses from the past ten years for a big ol' cowgirl-style party.

"A letter has been sent out to all the alumni and we are trying to get as many of the girls back this year as possible," Jochems said. "We are hoping to do something that same weekend (as Beef 'n' Barley Days)."

If you are interested in taking part in this upcoming queen and princess competition you must have your forms back to the committee no later than Friday, March 24. Forms are available at either Western Sky Saddlery or Joe Lucas' Westworld.

For more information on the upcoming competition you can contact any of the following people: Jan Carver – 337-2480; Lynda Jochems, 337-2176; Chrissy Van Arnam – 337-0210; or Linda Boettcher, 546-3773. Two kids as different as night and day

DR. DOBSON

Question:

My two kids are as different as night and day. You'd never even know they were born to the same parents. One of them is having trouble in school and the other is something of a superstar. I'm very worried about the one boy. Do some kids start out doing poorly and then catch fire?

Dr. Dobson:

Thank goodness they often do. Let me give you an encouraging illustration. Several years ago I attended a wedding ceremony in a beautiful garden setting, and I came away with some thoughts about parents who are raising a child like yours. After the minister had instructed the groom to kiss the bride, approximately 150 colorful, helium-filled balloons were released into the blue California sky. Within a few seconds the balloons were scattered all across the heavens, some of them rises they do not set the seconds the balloons were scattered all across the heavens, some of them rises they do not set they are set to be all one of the seconds. ing hundreds of feet overhead and others cruising toward the horizon. A few balloons struggled to clear the upper branches of the trees, while the show-offs became mere pinpoints of color on their journey to the sky.

How interesting, I thought, and how symbolic of children. Let's face it. Some boys and girls seem to be born with more helium than others. They catch all the right breezes and soar effortlessly to the heights, while others wobble dangerously close to the trees. Their frantic folks run along underneath, huffing and puffing to keep them airborne. It is an expansion of the proportion of the prop them airborne. It is an exhausting experience.

In short, I have some words of encouragement to you and all the parents of low-flying kids. Sometimes the child who has the greatest trouble getting off the ground eventually soars to the highest heights. That's why I urge you as parents not to look too quickly for the person your child will become.

School warning community of scam artists

BY SHAWNE MOHL

Administration from Carstairs' Hugh Sutherland School (HSS) and local RCMP are warning the public of a possi-ble scam that local communities should become aware of

According to Sean McKenna, Vice-Principal at HSS some members within the Town have been receiving phone calls from someone appearing to be raising funds for the 2006 graduation class.

McKenna says that the public needs to be made aware that the local school never solicits for funds by phone

'We don't do that. We do our fundraiser events, but are not phoning around for donations,"

McKenna says that the graduation class holds their fundraising events - such as their past weeks talent show and other grades sell various things, like chocolates magazines, and these sorts of things but never call around trying to sell their products.

According to McKenna the school became aware of the telephone scam when a parent reported it to the school. The parent pressed *69, which identifies the callers phone number, and it had a 780 area code.

According to Didsbury RCMP Cst. Lee Hammond if anyone receives these types of suspicious phone calls they should immediately contact the local police.
